

Health and safety resource center

Vale Training provides an online resource center to inform and educate clients during this time of remote colleagues and other unique business challenges. Our three-part library has over 100 curated articles, programs, checklists and videos. It is designed to help clients promote health, safety and back to business guidelines with all their colleagues.

Comprehensive information

Vale's health and safety resource center was created as an on-demand tool to help engage, support and inform remote employees.

- Significant content – numerous articles, professional editorials, programs and videos
- Single source of content to create packaged communications, engagement programs and guidance on safety and return to work
 - Additional resources will be added over time
 - Unlimited use – no licenses or upgrades

Key points

- Ready to implement editorial and messaging
- Fully developed employee engagement programs
- Extensive resources to help maintain a positive and healthy outlook
- Vetted material that has been delivered to thousands of remote workers
- Best practice programs for returning to work and maintaining clean environments

Experience and expertise

Sedgwick is a leading global provider of technology-enabled risk, benefits and integrated business solutions. With experts in 65 countries, clients can be assured that Sedgwick health and safety materials have been developed by experts in employee relations, industrial hygiene and communications. We have delivered proven results and look forward to providing the same to our clients.

To learn more about Vale Training's health and safety resource center, contact:

P. 817.633.4800 E. valeregistrations@sedgwick.com

W. valetrainingsolutions.com

Promote health and positivity

Learn from the experts

Access
more

To learn more about our integrated and customized solutions, visit SEDGWICK.COM